2 everyone's talking about... CITY ROMANCE

A reignited love of metropolitan life is informing interiors' new offerings

GRAND DESIGNS

Campbell-Rey's Invisible Collection is a compact but grandiose range of furniture inspired by the design languages of early 20th-century Milan, Secessionist Vienna and pre-war Stockholm, with pieces defined by exaggerated forms, modular shapes and rich, tonal colourways. Spending more time in our cities, we've all been rediscovering their charm, leading to urban sophistication being the home design look of the moment. Soho Home has launched the Back To The City collection inspired by the interiors from its 'houses' across the world, as Campbell-Rey's new Invisible Collection celebrates the grandeur of Milan, Vienna and Stockholm.

'These are cities with a rich culture of design and craftsmanship with beautiful architecture, many museums and galleries and fantastic food,' says Duncan Campbell, co-founder of Campbell-Rey. 'The collection is a modern reimagination of the best of 20th-century European design influenced by a deep and layered experience of our travels.'

The result is a proliferation of luxurious textures found in the salons of cities and graceful silhouettes that make us feel like we are in Rome, London or Paris, wherever our abodes may be.

HOT SEAT

Gallotti&Radice's new Akiko armchair in Brick velvet brings an element of Italian charm to home offices. Price on request (gallottiradice.it)

ETERNAL CITY

Rome has seen an abundance of new hotel openings this year, with the Hoxton Rome bringing a crowd of bright young things. Interiors draw inspiration from the nostalgic aesthetic of classic Italian cinema. (thehoxton.com)

URBAN GLAMOUR

Soho Home's new Back To The City collection is inspired by the locations where there are Soho Houses - taking particular reference from Soho House Hong Kong and the upcoming Soho House Rome. We love the pale hues and generous curves of the collection adding extra comfort to city life. Wyatt three-seater sofa in Sage mohair, £5,995; Ellis chair in Natural bouclé, £1,650 (sohohome.com)
