Breaking away from its trademark woven fabrics, A Rum Fellow – a brand celebrated for its work with artisan communities – has partnered with George Spencer Designs on new woodblock, screen and etched rotary printed fabrics. Its signature aesthetic is still on show – Kasma (shown as curtains here) is inspired by the lost cities of Central America. Kasma in Mulberry, £142m, available from September (georgespencer.com)

It's not often you come across a design studio run by identical twins. Yet here are Liv & Dom, the Lewes-based creative sisters bringing nude ladies (which you might recognise from the promotion for Netflix's Sex Education series) to our mantelpieces and shelves by way of cheeky earthenware candlesticks and trinket trays. Love! Ceres candlestick, £120 (livanddom.com)

THE FUTURE CLASSIC
high and low

String Furniture might be best known for its modular shelving, yet its big launch for the year is an adjustable side table designed in collaboration with Stockholm-based practice TAF Studio. Named in honour of the reopening of Stockholm's Nationalmuseum after five years of renovation and launching in September, the Museum table comes in aluminium and a range of colours. £290 (utilitydesign.co.uk)

The glass really is rose-tinted at Gallotti&Radice. Designed by Milanese firm Studiopepe, the sleek yet shapely Bonfire lamps have a rosy molten glass cover that acts as a diffuser. The result? Lighting that's on the right side of moody. Price on request (gallottiradice.it)
